Landing Of Contingent Protested

Britain Declares Treaty Gives Passage Rights For Troops

LONDON, May 1.—(CP)—An authoritative source said tonight that Britain had demanded removal of an Iraq troop concentration which was regarded as a threat to a British air base. This disclosure was made soon after Britain had landed fresh contingents at Basra, at the head of the Persian Gulf, to strengthen her position in the Middle East and to defend the vital Mosul oil fields.

This source said Britain considered there was no foundation for the Iraq assertion inasmuch as terms of the British-Iraq alliance provided that British troops "all facilities and assistance" in its power for the transit of British troops.

"As we are unable to allow close treaty rights to be altered," the source added, "troop movements proceeded as planned and troops duly arrived at Basra without any incident."

Basra is situated at the head of the Persian Gulf.

The first British troop landings there took place April 17-18.

The British ambassador in Baghdad, Sir Kinahan Cornwallis, was said to have told Iraq authorities that Britain considered her troops in Iraq as being there to defend the oil fields.

London, it was added, insisted on Sir Kinahan to take any steps necessary to ensure safety of British women at large, and to prevent the Iraq government from overrunning the Iraq government a month ago.

Baghdad advised reaching Vichy yesterday via Beirut, Lebanon, said Britain had taken measures to remove British women and children from the country.

The original landings in Iraq were to protect Iraq's oil fields, and to prevent Iraq from attacking, and to preserve communication.

Presumably the British movement through the country referred to in London as well as in the Baghdad-Vichy dispatch, was a demonstration of troops in Iraq.

BRITISH FORCES IN GREECE

Evacuation of Greece Passes Dunkerque

Nazi Bombing Of Channel Port Nothing Compared To Campaign in Greece, Says British Veterans

EXPRIATION BOARD FORMED ON LAND DEAL
Bullk Of British Expeditionary Force Comes Out To Fight Again Because Valiant Rear Guard Units Piled Greek Mountain Passes High With German Dead

Following is the first eyewitness story of the British evacuation from Greece, told by two British United Press correspondents who accompanied the British Expeditionary Force.—EDITOR.

By RICHARD D. McILLAN and HENRY T. GORRELL
British United Press Correspondents
Copyright, 1941, by The B.U.P. and The Edmonton Bulletin.

WITH THE BRITISH TROOPS EVACUATED FROM GREECE, VIA CAIRO, May 1.—(BUP)—It was worse than Dunkerque.

That was what British Imperials who came safely out of Dunkerque and again came through the deluge of German bombs in southern Greece told us as we joined them at a secret rendezvous to board ships for the journey across the waters of the Mediterranean.

We came out of conquered Greece, and the bulk of the British Expeditionary Force came out to fight again in the battle of the Mediterranean because their valiant comrades in the rear guard forces piled the Greek mountain passes with German dead.

The Royal Navy carried on unflinchingly under the merciless bombardment of Adolf Hitler's Luftwaffe.

(This dispatch was filed in sections by McMillan and Gorrell by way of Cairo and London, and some sections were missing when it reached London. British news reports that 45,000 of the 80,000 men had been evacuated from Greece and that a number of Greek soldiers also had been evacuated after all British war material abandoned in Greece were rendered useless. Estimates of German casualties in Greece range from 15,000 to 150,000.)

Many of the troops among 11,500 in the convoy on which we embarked from Greece were veterans of the Battle of Dunkerque.

"The bombing at Dunkerque" one of them told us, "was nothing compared to what we have experienced in the Greek campaign."

We gathered at a secret spot on a secluded Greek beach, just as the British troops fell back on the sands of Dunkerque after the battle of France last summer.

On our retreat to the coast, we carried typewriters and an army pack slung in soldier fashion.

Imperials Marched Slowly

But In Perfect Order
The British Imperials—many of them sons of World War heroes of Planners—marched slowly but steadily, in perfect order. They were three abreast and they made a seemingly endless line as they moved through the bomb-torn sycamores.

Once they passed a field of scarlet poppies that were a brilliant patch in the spring sunlight. Sometimes they sang as they marched and at one stage of the journey we sang with them for all we were worth.

As we moved toward the sea, the waiting ships and the bombs, some of the stories of the bitter Battle of Greece

British Seamen Have Courage Needed To Win War At Sea

The British's mightiest battleships, speedier cruisers, destroyers and aircraft carriers watching the strategic warfare of what Mussolini once proudly proclaimed "mare nostrum"—but sea.

From the moment I was the first accredited correspondent with the fleet, I have been in the thick of it. I have taken to win a sea war.

Now I am convinced British seamen have what is needed in courage, for soulful, intense determination to win the sea war. I am convinced that the British navy has what it takes to win the sea war.

Training Air-Gunners To Spot Enemy

Air-gunners of the Royal Canadian Air Force are being trained in the recognition of enemy planes. They also fire "camera bullets" being taught to judge correctly where the enemy plane should appear in the "wrong angle" at the moment of opening fire. This depends on the speed of the enemy plane and the direction it may be flying in, toward, away from, or across the gunner's line of flight—a highly complicated problem.

RA.F. POUNDS KIEL IN HEAVY NIGHT ATTACK

Canal, Port Facilities Of Submarine Base Are Heavily Bombed

By NED RUSSELL
LONDON, May 1.—(BUP)—While the German air force resumed at home last night, presumably because of bad weather, the Royal Air Force carried out striking raids on German naval bases, also struck at Kiel.

Their ministry said that R.A.F. bombers raided Berlin, Kiel, Hamburg and London.

Kiel was chosen for the main British raid. There, the British forces struck the Kiel canal and port facilities in the submarine base.

The ministry added that targets in the Baltic area also were attacked. The air ministry commented:

"Last night strong bomber command forces attacked objectives in Germany. The main attack was directed against the naval base at Kiel. The objectives included targets in the Kiel area, the industrial zone of Hamburg and the port of Berlin."

The campaign then continued: "Yesterday aircraft of the same command continued to attack and harass naval shipping off the British coast. Other aircraft successfully bombed the wireless station and island off the Norwegian coast."

The Germans are believed to use Newmarket's wireless station as a radio relay station to British ships.

One other attack is missing from the night operations:

BERLIN, May 1.—(BUP)—The German propaganda agency today admitted British planes recently bombed Berlin at night. According to D.N.B. bombs were dropped on the city of Berlin.

The Nazi agency also admitted that British planes visited other parts of Germany in the night.

Pegged Taximum Price For Butter Revoked In Order

War-time Price and Trade Board announced today the order of Dec. 12, 1940, limiting the maximum wholesale price for butter had been revoked at this time the board of the minimum figure at the board of the price prevailing Dec. 12.

At Montreal this price was about 10¢ per pound, the first grade creamery.

Mechanized Forces Shown By Russians In May by Parade

MOSCOW, May 1.—(AP)—The Red army has demonstrated new military mechanized forces in traditional May 4 parade today.

The parade featured a number of motorized military units, including a tank division.

Two motorized tank divisions were among the units, equipped with modern tanks.

50 American Tankers Will Be Transferred To Britain's Service

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—In quick response to President Roosevelt's request for ships for this country's "all-out aid to the democracies," the United States maritime commission made plans today to place 50 American tankers in the service of Britain within the next few days.

All operators of American tankers would be operated from oil-producing countries along the north coast of South America to U.S. north Atlantic ports.

The tentative plan does not call for a transfer of registry of tankers to Britain, but for their use outside the war zone for the direct benefit of Britain.

Under the proposal the tankers would be operated from oil-producing countries along the north coast of South America to U.S. north Atlantic ports.

At the north Atlantic ports the oil tankers would be transferred to the British for the remainder of the war.

The President's request was made by the president last night to begin rounding up 2,000,000 tons of shipping to carry abroad "vital war materials."

In a letter to Rear Admiral Henry S. Lane, commission chairman, the President said that "vital war supplies are piling up at the ports or delayed at the factories" and indicated first consideration must be given to moving these munitions across the Atlantic to Britain.

The President indicated that cargo vessels of all types might be taken from their existing or proposed trade routes to haul vital war supplies and food across the seas.

He said also the American merchant fleet must be expanded faster than was planned "so that ships and more ships will be available to carry the food and the munitions of war to the democracies of the world."

It was believed that some, if not a considerable number of the ships would be turned over to Britain under the lend-lease program.

Australians Are Enlisting In Increasing Numbers

MELBOURNE, May 1.—(AP)—Army Minister Percy Spender announced Wednesday recruiting recently has shown a marked increase.

He said this obviously is due to the disposition of Australia to ally to the aid of their country in times of adversity more than at other periods.

EXPRIATION BOARD FORMED ON LAND DEAL

To Handle Removal Of Families From Sites For War Use

Appointment of a three-member expatriation board to deal with cases in the Tilley East area which cannot be settled by private negotiation, was announced Thursday by Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works.

Legislation passed at the last session of the house empowered the minister to expatriate land to be used for war purposes. The member will be appointed each by the government and settlers, these two to appoint a third who will be chairman.

By an agreement between the Dominion and provincial governments a tract of 100,000 acres is being called on for aid in the program.

Writer Finds Sailors Are Willing To Take Any Chances In Fight

NAZI LOSSES 'COLOSSAL' IN GREECE WAR

Britain Speculates Where Next German Move Is Planned

MELBOURNE, Australia, May 1.—(CP)—The Australian government said today it had received advice showing clearly that the German had suffered "colossal" losses in men and machines in Greece and that British casualties had been relatively small.

LONDON, May 1.—(CP)—At least 80 per cent of the German attacking force in Greece—or about 48,000 men—has been taken safely from the ferry beaches of that conquered kingdom. The war office announced today, and speculation is as to whether Hitler's next blow will be aimed at the Near East or at Italy.

Some informed military circles said a grand scale German attack on Egypt and the Suez canal by way of Syria and Palestine was likely within 10 days while others expressed belief the "Axis high command again was contemplating an invasion attempt on Britain."

The language of the Middle East command, the German, announcing withdrawal of 48,000 men from the Balkans, was interpreted as indicating Greece indicated the perilous operation was proceeding in order to get at least 100,000 men to the Suez canal. Prime Minister Churchill said yesterday the British forces had suffered 3,000 casualties in Greece.

LEAVE FROM BEACHES
British news reports that 45,000 of the 80,000 men had been evacuated from Greece and that a number of Greek soldiers also had been evacuated after all British war material abandoned in Greece were rendered useless. Estimates of German casualties in Greece range from 15,000 to 150,000.)

GAS STATIONS ARE PROHIBITED FROM OPENING

Those Presently Closed Must Have Permission To Reopen

OTTAWA, May 1.—(CP)—No new gasoline stations are to be established in Canada, and stations presently closed cannot be reopened without permission, said an order issued by the office of the oil controller in Ottawa.

The order, dated April 30, provides that any gasoline station which has been closed for 30 days cannot be reopened without authorization from the oil controller.

The order forbids a distributor to purchase or lease a station which is located, if the station, at the time of purchase or lease, was closed for fuel or lubricants by any other distributor.

Distributors are forbidden to obtain orders by "offering, promising, giving or providing in any manner any money, property, gift, concession or other thing of any kind, including any special concession or rebate, in exchange for motor fuel and lubricants."

If a dealer wishes to make a change in distributor, he must obtain from his present distributor and make a satisfactory declaration that he cannot be arranged, the oil controller must be informed. If a dealer has been in breach of regulation, the granting of special concessions is prohibited.

Within 10 days of receiving the notice from the dealer, the distributor must sell and transfer the station in possession of the dealer to the other distributor. The present distributor is prohibited from selling or leasing the station to any other person, and cannot be arranged, the oil controller must be informed. If a dealer has been in breach of regulation, the granting of special concessions is prohibited.

NEED IS ONLY FOR EXPERTS IN SHIP WORK

By R. T. RICHARDSON
OTTAWA, May 1.—(AP)—About 180 shipyard workers of special calibre are urgently needed in Halifax, a munitions department official said today.

The official said that there is no shortage in the number of shipyard workers and joiners, but the shortage is in the calibre of the workers.

For ship repairs, Halifax needs 25 first class boiler makers, especially with marine experience, 25 lube operators and 30 electricians. The official said the need for men is urgent, and that the need for men is urgent, and that the need for men is urgent.

Shipyard workers are willing to go to the front, but they are not getting the same pay as they are getting at home. The department recently raised the pay of shipyard workers, but the pay is still not high enough.

A number of shipyard workers and carpenters from the provinces have been recruited to work in the shipyard. The shipyard is now working on a program of 25 vessels on the Pacific Coast, and the need for men is urgent.

Australian Reinforcements Reach Singapore To Aid Defences - - - Guarding Pipeline Of Britain's "Flowing Gold"

More husky Australian soldiers equipped with modern transport, artillery and mechanized fighting machines, arrived at Singapore recently as Britain prepared to defend her Far East bastions against any threat from the eastern end of the Axis. At LEFT a group of the Australians are shown as they disembarked to take up stations throughout the Malayan peninsula. At RIGHT is a "digger" officer, typical of the tough warriors sent from the southern Dominion.

A couple of British Tommies are pictured guarding a section of the huge pipeline which stretches for hundreds of miles across the Syrian desert from Iraq to the Mediterranean Sea. The oil fields of Iraq, under British ownership, produce annually 4,000,000 tons of oil, that is piped from the heart of Iraq to the terminal at Haifa, Palestine. Arrival of strong British army at Basra on the Persian Gulf, was described as making certain that the new government of Sayid Raschid Ali, who came into power recently, through a coup d'état, allegedly aided by the Nazis, would carry out its defence treaty with Great Britain. Another phase of the landing of the army is to thwart any German plan to seize the rich near eastern oil fields with parachute and airplane troops operating in the African desert.

Walls Of London Crumble . . .

But Not The British Spirit

Your children and their children will probably see this picture in history books, for it illustrates completely the English spirit in this war. Rescue workers carry an injured girl out of the debris that was her home after one of London's worst air raids. She had been buried in the ruins 12 hours. Note especially how rescuers pay no attention to tottering brick wall perilously close to them.

A Belgian nobleman, Count Elie de Borchgrave, is pictured as he arrived in New York en route to Canada, where he will join a Belgian army unit. The count escaped to Lisbon after the Battle of France and made his way from there to South America.

Like Canada the United States is standing a side of... finance, defence. Here is a copy of the postal savings stamp which will go on sale about the country May 1, 1941, in connection with the sale of national defence savings bonds. The bonds run up to $10,000 each.

Ambassador's Wife Sees War-Time London

Mrs. John G. Winant, wife of the American ambassador in London, is shown getting her first view of war-time London, with a bobby pointing out points of interest. Mrs. Winant flew across the Atlantic to Lisbon, via Clipper plane, then flew from Lisbon to London, to join her husband.

Camouflaged Soldier

King George VI seems to be talking to a ghost or a Bedouin chieftain, but actually the shrouded figure he is addressing is a soldier in the front line of Britain's defences. The Tommy is camouflaged to protect him from the prying eyes of Goering's air scouts.

Canadian Survivors Of Rajputana Still Cheery

Still cheering for victory and eager to get their men back for the German submarine which sent their vessel to the bottom with the loss of 40 lives, this group of Canadian survivors of the torpedoed armed merchant cruiser Rajputana came into an east coast port. They're on their way to home towns throughout Canada, on "survivors' leave"—but they'll be back.
